Slayers of Man and Woman Traced to Cave by State Troops in Kentucky

Fugitives Defiant When Told to Surrender — Use of Gas is Planned

JACKSON, Ky.—(By Associated Press).—Three members of the band which raided the Breathitt-co jail on Monday morning, killing one man, fatally wounding a woman and seriously wounding another, today were surrounded by state troops in a cave on John Little's Creek, twelve miles from here.

Captain Holbrook of the state forces planned today to use gas in an effort to drive them out.

FUGITIVES DEFY THE SOLDIERS WHEN TOLD TO SURRENDER

The men were discovered in the cave late yesterday. Captain Holbrook sent Alfred Noble, a friend of the fugitive trio, into the cave last night to ask them to come out. They sent him word that when they came out it would be "feet first."

Captain Holbrook did not feel that his little force was adequate to hold both entrances to the cave, which extends thru a hill on John Little's Creek, to the head of Caney Creek, and came back here this morning to get more men. He is planning to leave soon with ten or fifteen additional men, deputy sheriffs and troopers.

Bloodhounds were brought here again this morning, but it was not stated for what purpose.

The three men, Bud Noble and two sons, are alleged leaders of the gang of seven men who stormed the Breathitt-co jail here Friday midnight in an effort to free four men, relatives of the Nobles, who were believed by the attackers to be held therein.

Jail officers, however, scenting an attempted jail delivery, had previously removed the prisoners to Winchester. All were held on murder charges.

The attack led to a fight between the jail officers and the attacking party. Those killed and wounded were members of the jail staff, the raiders having escaped unhurt. Five alleged members of the attacking party were captured later in the mountainous regions of Breathitt-co.

TOKIO, Dec. 14.—The people of Japan heartily rejoice at the news from Washington, announcing that an agreement has been reached between the four powers for the preservation of peace in the Pacific.

Japan congratulates the delegates to the Washington conference who participated in formulating this agreement and the people of the empire whose representatives signed it. The people of Japan congratulate the people of these powers upon the approach of an era of peaceful development and friendly feelings among the nations of the earth.

The expect great things from this new concert of the powers that once allied themselves in a common cause in defense of civilization.

We of Japan, are ready to render all possible support to the four-power agreement, so that it may be a powerful factor for the preservation of peace, not only of the Pacific, but of the entire world.

Viscount Takahashi assumed the prime ship after the assassination of Emperor Hara. He is considered somewhat of a conservative always having propounded a policy of peaceful occupation of China rather than military occupation. As far as international relations are concerned, he has been considered a liberal.

The premier visited America in his youth and studied matters of finance in which he is considered one of the world's greatest authorities. He acted as finance minister in the Hara cabinet.

"PETITION IN BOOTS" DEMANDS SUSPENSION OF TRUANT OFFICER

CELINA.—(Special).—A "petition in boots" appeared here Wednesday, when 160 Mercer-co farmers marched into town and proceeded to the office of Mayor J. L. Morrow and to the county school board office at the court house, demanding the suspension of former sheriff William Humphrey as county truant officer.

This action followed the filing of a charge of assault and battery against Humphrey by William Davis, 40, a farmer and his bond being fixed at $2,000. Humphrey alleged that Davis, who is separated from his wife, followed Humphrey's wife and daughter on the street.

It is understood that Humphrey will not serve as truant officer until the charges against him are disposed of.

ENGINEER SEEKS MANAGER JOB

B. F. Darling is Considered by Commissioners

B. F. Darling, supervising engineer of the Lima sewerage system, may be the city's first manager. Darling is said to be a strong favorite with several members of the charter commission for the city manager's job. His application was among the first to be considered by the commission, it is stated.

Altho never having been a city manager, Darling has grown up in municipal work. For six years he was city engineer of White Plains, N. Y., his home. In succession he was then city engineer of Ossining, N. Y., Pleasant and East Chester, N. Y. For 25 years he was in business as head of a large engineering firm in the east. His company drew plans and estimates for the Bronx Valley sewerage system, 15 miles long, costing $3,000,000.

Darling came to Lima in 1918 to check up the McClintock plans for the city's sewerage system. He was later appointed supervising engineer.

"I feel that no man is better qualified if he be efficient, or no better fitted, than a city engineer to hold the job of city manager. An engineer knows what has been done; he knows what should be done; he knows when it is right after it is done," Darling said.

Members of the city commission would not say when a city manager would be named. It is expected several other applicants from outside the city will appear before the commission before a decision is reached.

PURITY LEAGUE WRECKED! UNKISSED IS KISSED!

Beauty Offers Lips and Last Disciple Falls

Tempter Causes Puritan to Forewear His Vows to Outfit

(BY BOB DORMAN)

NEW YORK.—(Special).—The Purity League of New York University seniors is in its last agony. Does that mean that the unkissed, 99.9 per cent pure college man is a myth? Judge for yourself. (Or ask a college man!) Anyhow—

Most of the Purity Leaguers were swallowed up in the army of student smokers and spooners when the faculty sternly inquired: "What's all this nonsense?"

NONSENSE—that's just what they called it! And read the rules:

- 1.—To treat the fair sex with reverence.
- 2.—To spoon not at all.
- 3.—To eschew all forms of gambling.
- 4.—To regard the use of intoxicants as a vice.
- 5.—To regard profanity as unnecessary.
- 6.—To abstain from smoking.

In its youth the Purity League was a fast traveler.

There was internal trouble at first.

Jack Weinheimer, the football captain, had no sooner been installed as the first president than charges were filed by a student that Weinheimer: (1) borrowed pipe tobacco from him; (2) cursed him for not furnishing a match; and (3) kissed a lady in his presence.

THREW HIM OUT

The League decided that as a purist Weinheimer was a good football player and threw him out.

As his successor they chose Ralph C. Walker, a charter member, reputed to have been kissed but once. He explained this was merely a "courtship kiss."

"Har! Har!" said the writer's boss, when he heard about the league. "Get the most bewitching girl on Broadway and take her up there. Have her say 'Kiss Me' to the Purity Leaguers and photograph what happens."

Mildred Soper, one of the choice blossoms of the "Blossomtime" chorus, thought it would be interesting—once—to kiss a man who had never been kissed before.

We found there were a few "last standers," chief among them Elias Perlman. He still wore the white hat—the badge of the unkissed—and was still seeking new members.

This despite frowns of the faculty, which has been especially displeased by the white hats.

"Are you still a Purity Leaguer?" we asked, jathly, foolishly.

"WOULDN'T KISS GIRL."

"AM I?" he repeated, "say—I smoke now, nor do I swear. And for girls, I enjoy conversing quietly with certain of them on occasions, but kiss one? I would not, I do not, nor have I ever!"

"Meet Miss Soper," I suggested. "How-do-you-do," and he bowed courteously.

"Oh-h, KISS ME!" cried she. Right at him, she cried it!

A professor came up "Elias Perlman," he said, "you know we ordered this white hat nonsense stopped!"

Elias looked at Mildred.

"All right, professor," he said, "throwing his purity hat on the ground. 'All right, but remember, sir, that you ordered me to do this!' I renounce the Purity League. You force me to it!"

And he turned and gathered Mildred in his arms.

I took five photographs of that kiss and still had time to look around for the professor. He was gone.

VICTORY ALMOST ASSURED FOR IRISH PEACE TREATY

New Strength for Pact Shown As Dail Reopens

AIDED BY CARSON'S SPEECH

Dublin Parliament, However, Still in Secret Session

DUBLIN.—(By Associated Press).—As the Dail Eireann met today for the continuation of its secret session it was declared by supporters of Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith that they and the other signers of the Irish peace agreement now felt certain of an ultimate majority in favor of the treaty.

They declared no prominent person in any part of Ireland had yet protested against their action in signing an agreement with the British cabinet. President De Valera's objections were stated to be to certain details of the treaty, which he thinks would have been improved if it had been resubmitted to him and the Dail cabinet before it was signed.

AIDED BY CARSON

The general impression in Dublin today was that Lord Carson's speech in the house of lords last night had been a victory for the treaty. It was pointed out that Lord Carson had pictured the English action toward Ulster in a light that bore out the prediction of Michael Collins at Armagh last September, when he said that England would "ulster as long as it suited her purpose and then throw her over."

As to Mr. De Valera's position with regard to the treaty it is asserted that when the government proposals were submitted to the Dail cabinet on September 2, certain objections were made which Mr. De Valera does not think were adequately met in the final draft. The secret session is occupied with a discussion of these points and it was said after last night's adjournment that the members had got no further along in their discussion than they were when the public session was concluded early yesterday afternoon.

COMMON IN SESSION

LONDON.—(By Associated Press).—The house of commons this afternoon resumed its debate on the Anglo-Irish agreement the feature of the early proceedings being an address by former Premier Asquith heartily commending the treaty for the acceptance of the house.

TROOPS ON GUARD AT MINES

Ready to Protect Workers Against Mobs of Women

PITTSBURG, Kansas.—(By Associated Press).—National guardsmen, mostly cavalry troops, entered the Kansas coal fields today to protect union miners who wish to work and who have been prevented from doing so by the activities of large crowds of women, wives, relatives and sweethearts of striking miners.

Approximately 300 men were included in the force ordered on duty, but the entire guard, about 3,000 strong, was under instructions to be ready for immediately duty should their presence be required.

Whether the troops should be directed to use force in the event their orders were disobeyed was a matter giving Commander Dreibus serious concern this morning. Ordinary troops going on strike duty would be instructed, officers said, to use persuasion and if that failed to adopt more aggressive measures. In the present instance, however, it was stated virtually all the trouble has been created by women and the officers said frankly that they were in a quandary as how to proceed.

In the event of further disorders, it was said, the troops might make wholesale arrests of the women, but as one officer said, that would not meet the situation should there be a concerted action against the troops on the part of the rioters. That further demonstrations were planned at the mines by the women today was reported to the office here of Sheriff Gould.

No official announcement has been made by operators this morning as to whether an effort would be made to operate this mine. Mine demonstrations by the women have kept the non-strikers away.

CHATHAM, Mass.—(By Associated Press).—The freight steamer Schoeder, bound light from Boston to New York after finishing a voyage from Pacific ports, struck on Stone Shoal in a snow squall early today. She was apparently hard aground when sighted by the Marine Point coast guards who were out on patrol. Seas were rough. There were about 50 men aboard.

BENIGN HEAVILY GUARDED ON TRIP TO DEATH HOUSE

COLUMBUS.—Under one of the heaviest guards ever assembled to conduct a convict from the Columbus union station to the Ohio penitentiary, Dominick Benigno, Cleveland murderer, was escorted last night to the institution where on April 27, he is condemned to die for the murder of Wilfred C. Sly in a payroll robbery.

Deputy Sheriff E. Jantz, of Cleveland, and seven other Cleveland deputies and two automobile loads of Columbus officers, in addition to two officers on the patrol which carried the convicted man to the prison, composed the guard. Along the route to the penitentiary at various intervals, a number of police were stationed. The trip was made without incident.

New Effort on Part of Mayor Expected — Second Injunction Denied

Chief of Police O. J. Roush won a victory in common pleas court Thursday and again blocked Mayor Burkhardt's plans to oust him.

Judge Becker early in the day made permanent the injunction he granted Roush a few days ago and on which the chief resumed his duties. This order prevents Burkhardt from acting further under his original ouster order and also enjoins the civil service commission from taking any steps under it.

Late in the day Becker denied Roush a second injunction prohibiting Burkhardt from further attempts to remove him under the second order, which was filed after the court had held that the mayor's first attempt was illegal. This injunction was asked on the grounds that the mayor's second communication was not an order of removal, but simply a notice of the charges Burkhardt had drafted.

Burkhardt is expected to act immediately to remove Roush. City Solicitor Garling said the next step is up to the mayor.

IS HELD NEW ORDER

It was contended by Solicitor H. E. Garling, representing the mayor, that the order of December 7 marked a new departure in the matter and bore no relation to the order of November 22. It was held by Garling that the mayor was starting all over again when he handed Roush the letter.

Melvin C. Light, representing Roush, holds that the letter of December 7, in which Burkhardt advised Roush of the charges and threatened to remove him December 13 unless an explanation was filed to his satisfaction, was not an order, but a private letter.

He argued that no explanation could be filed, as the charges were not specific or definite.

"Is it not the duty of the mayor to give us the right to file an explanation?" he argued. "We have the right to make one. It has been denied, because the charges are in such shape that no explanation can be made. In failing to accord us our right, Mayor Burkhardt has failed to comply with the order of the court."

"The charges set out are as plainly stated as the information at hand will permit," stated Garling.

He then read the charges, one by one.

"Nothing has been offered to show why the injunction should be dissolved," Attorney Leete, also representing Roush, told the court.

"THE CHIEF TO LAW"

He pointed out to the court that Roush can only be removed by Burkhardt in the manner prescribed by law. "We are entitled to the benefit of the law," he said.

"The latter of December 7 says: 'You are charged with the following. Who charged him,' demanded Leete.

Attorney Leete also pointed out that the Mayor's letter stated the complaints must be explained to his satisfaction. "This was threatening denial of judgment," he said.

"It is a threat to interfere with the conduct of the office," declared Leete, "and hence a violation of the court's order."

Attorneys for Roush declared that they are prepared to fight this action to the last ditch. They are convinced, they say, that Burkhardt has made up his mind to "fire" Roush no matter what his explanation of any charges which the mayor may draw up. They contend that he is prejudiced and therefore unable to pass on a reply of the chief in an unbiased manner.

CHRISTMAS TREE IMPERILED

Its Extinction Threatened, Forestry Association Says

GREENS ARE SLAUGHTERED

Some Means of Reproduction is Sought

WASHINGTON—(By Associated Press)—Each holiday time brings the usual story about the Christmas trees—where they come from, how many, and the means used to bring hundreds of train loads of them to the markets.

But the Christmas tree and the holly and the other greens which go so far toward making the holiday "atmosphere" are doomed to extinction unless some means are taken to reproduce them. The state of Vermont alone furnishes five million trees for the eastern markets each Christmas time and unless some means are taken to conserve and reproduce the supply some time will be exhausted. The American Forestry association has issued a Christmas tree monograph on the subject.

"The first step to save the Christmas greens," it says, "is better fire prevention methods. Wholesale cutting by vendors who never go into the woods except at this season and the 'holdup' prices in big cities are denounced. On the other hand proper cutting aids the growth of the larger trees and if properly done is a help. The holly is being cut by the untimely in a way that borders on slaughter, and only the right sort of cutting will save this valued green for the holiday season.

FIR TREES

"Ten of the 25 kinds of fir trees

round in the world are native to North America, eight occur in the Pacific slopes, and in the Rocky Mountain regions, and only two are found in the eastern United States, and one of those—Fraser's Fir—is limited to the high mountains of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. Most important in the western group are the Grand Fir, Noble Fir, White Fir and Red Fir. The Balsam Fir is unquestionably the best known and most widely distributed of our native evergreen trees native to North America. It frequents bogs, swamps and other wet places. Among its chief associates are the American Larch, Arbor Vitae, Black Spruce and Red Spruce. Its companion species are not many for few trees can withstand the extreme wet and cold conditions of our northern bogs and swamps.

GREATEST CHRISTMAS TREE

"The Balsam Fir is the tree which satisfies many human wants, and the greatest of all its gifts is the Christmas tree. As a Christmas tree it has no superior, and in many localities no other native tree has Christmas tree qualities that even approach it. The European Fir, so common throughout many parts of Continental Europe, has many characteristics in common with our Balsam Fir. It, too, has been used for centuries as a Christmas tree. The similarity between these two trees is very marked which may have helped develop our high regard for the Balsam Fir and rate it as the foremost Christmas tree of the eastern United States.

"On the trunk of the Balsam will be found a large number of little blisterlike sacs of balsam. A finger nail will puncture the little blisters and there will flow a small quantity of balsam, as clear as crystal. When refined, this is used in making microscopic slides in our scientific laboratories. It is used chiefly to attach cover glass to the slides. Balsam is also regarded as an excellent medicine."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy is easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar—syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or cane syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the oil pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and saves persistent children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothe and soothe the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly cures a cold, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and if it is held for bronchitis, or whooping cough, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "the genuine Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guarantees to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., El. Wayne, Ind.

PLANS FOR NEW LEAGUE GROW

Harding's Association of Nations to Have 4 Groups

FAVORED BY THE EUROPEANS

Simms Gives Outline of World Organization Program

By WM. PHILIP SIMMS
WASHINGTON—Plans for an association of nations are already well under way, according to high-placed Republican sources here, where it is said that Great Britain, France and other leading powers have been given to understand that the United States does not intend long to stand aloof from participation in world affairs.

While details of the new society of nations are still in a formative state and subject to change, it is in a position to give a general outline of the plan now being informally discussed in official circles.

In the main the idea would be to provide for a number of "groups," each more or less independent of the others, but which could bring its broader problems to a general, or world conference, meeting about once a year.

There would be at least four "groups," or minor "leagues."

1. A Pacific group.
2. An Asiatic group.
3. A European group.
4. An American group.

The Pacific group would include the nations which have just signed the four-power treaty here—America, Britain, France and Japan.

The Asiatic group would at first have a membership of nine—America, Britain, Japan, China, India, Holland, Italy, Belgium and Portugal at present attending the Washington conference.

The European group would take in the European countries now members of the Wilson League of Nations, while the American group would comprise the nations covered by the Monroe Doctrine.

Advocates of this plan claim it would be more practical than the original League of Nations.

Each group, they say, could and would settle its own problems without need of bringing them before the world conference. In this way, it is argued, the United States would seldom, if ever, be called upon to mix in quarrels peculiarly European.

On the other hand problems of general interest could be threshed out at a world conference just as precise problems have been dealt with at the Pacific conference here.

EUROPE FAVORABLE
It is an open secret that Europe greatly desires America to enter some kind of an association of nations and is willing for her to come in on pretty much her own terms.

However, having been accused in European countries of calling the Washington conference for the purpose of breaking up the League of Nations and substituting therefor another league more beneficial to the United States, President Harding is not expected to take precipitate action now.

Rather it is expected he will go slow and allow the "association" which he favors just to "grow."

An economic congress may be one of the next steps taken. Meantime public opinion is expected to provide the necessary atmospheric warmth needed to encourage the growth of the Harding plan.

PROSPERITY NEAR, BABSON SAYS

Statistician Cheers Lima Men in Columbus Meeting

Roger W. Babson, world famous statistician, told members of the Lima chamber of commerce in a address at Columbus Wednesday the lowest ebb in industrial and building trades had not been reached, but that an era of normalcy and prosperity may be expected in 1937.

There are 12 periods in each business cycle and by the study of these we are able to determine what any industry or section will suffer in a business way," Babson said. He gave a lengthy summary of the past, present and future situation.

"Every period begins at the peak of prosperity, accompanied by large profits and high wages. This is followed by a period of inefficiency, accompanied by declining bond prices. Next we have the period of dishonesty and profiteering, accompanied by declining stock prices. Then comes the period of crime wave, with declining stock prices. Then comes the period of crime wave, with declining commodity prices. Lack of confidence is then everywhere apparent, which results in general unemployment.

"People must then cut down living expenses, families double up, all of which results in declining real estate prices. This is the end of the general decline and improvement generally begins at this point of the cycle," Babson said.

"Thrift then becomes more evident and this results in declining interest rates, allowing banks to loan money to start new building and again set the wheels of industry moving. The unemployment period always results in greater efficiency, which is evident at this point of the cycle. Increasing bond prices are noticeable at this time.

"People become more honest, fairer prices are asked by both merchants and labor and we get a dollar in value whether buying merchandise or labor which we did not get during the period of prosperity," Babson declared.

GOVERNORS TO MEET
WASHINGTON—Governors of several states are to be asked to call conferences of federal district attorneys with a view to bringing about greater cooperation between the federal and state legal agencies. Attorney General Daugherty announced today.

LOVE RESTORES LORD GREY'S SIGHT

LONDON.—England is agog over the "great love miracle" of the restoration of Viscount Grey's eyesight by Cupid after the world's greatest oculists had failed. It's arrived at by adding these three announcements:

No. 1—The engagement of Viscount Grey and Lady Glenconner.

No. 2—The rapid return of Viscount Grey's vision.

No. 3—The probable activity of Viscount Grey in politics.

The coming marriage of Viscount Grey and Lady Glenconner will climax happily a series of tragedies. It's a match not only of wealth and high position, but of brains, literary ability, and similar strong likings and prejudices.

Pamela Wyndham in youth was known as the brilliant sister of George Wyndham, who was as adept at writing splendid literary criticism as debating in Parliament or running British business as chief secretary for Ireland.

The sister was accomplished conversationalist and a clever writer of poetry.

Then she married Edward Tennant, the wealthy business man, brother of the famous Margot Asquith, wife of the former premier.

Tennant was made Lord Glenconner. Lord and Lady Glenconner were the warm personal friends of Viscount Grey.

For more than 11 years Grey was the head of the foreign office. He strove so hard to prevent the great war that he literally worked himself blind—for he could see only momentarily when he finally was forced to rest.

Grey came to the United States as British ambassador. But while in Washington he was threatened with complete blindness and hurried home.

And then Lady Glenconner came back into his life.

Her favorite son had been killed in the war. Her husband died about a year ago.

She became a firm believer in spiritualism. She wrote a book in which she told of the messages she received from her son "beyond the veil."

It is related that she was reading this book to Viscount Grey, long a widower, when he asked her to become his wife.

DIAMONDS AND RUBIES HANDED OVER TO POLAND BY RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

WARSAW—Gold and jewels, estimated to be worth fifty billion Polish marks, the Russian Soviet government's first payment to Poland under the treaty of peace signed at Riga on March 18, last, have arrived here. Diamonds, rubies and other precious stones and gold bars, filling 100 cases in all, were brought here on a special train under military escort. The bullock, weighing 1,280 pounds, gives Poland its first substantial gold reserve.

Experts compute that this, together with proceeds from the tax of from eight to fifteen per cent on all property, a bill for which has just passed the second reading in the diet, will nearly cover all of Poland's internal debts. The tax is expected to yield eighty billion marks.

It is estimated by financiers that about 200,000,000,000 marks (paper) are now in circulation in the country.

YOUNGSTOWN—The will of Mrs. Grace Tod Arrel, last member of the immediate family of David Tod, Ohio's Civil war governor bequeaths $155,000 to various public institutions. It became known today. Mrs. Arrel died November 27. An estimate of the total value of the estate filed today, placed it at $1,500,000. Bequests included $60,000 to the Youngstown hospital association, $25,000 to St. Elizabeth's hospital, $10,000 to the Visiting Nurse association, $10,000 to the Y. W. C. A., $10,000 to Christ Mission Kindergarten, $10,000 to the Home for Aged Women, $30,000 to St. John's Episcopal church, $5,000 to Mrs. Grace Arrel Nash, a niece, and $1,000 each to five other persons.

Judge George Arrel, her husband, is given the use of home and furnishings while the residue of the estate is divided equally between David Arrel, a son and Mrs. Fannie Arrel Parson, a daughter.

RAILROAD COMPANIES APPEAL DAMAGE VERDICT

Appeal to common pleas court of a damage suit for $300, lost by the Chicago & Erie and Pennsylvania Railroad companies in justice court in Anguize-ty, was made late Wednesday.

J. A. Park, Westminster, sued the railroad for $300 damages, claiming he suffered loss of more than that amount in shipment of household goods from Steubenville to Westminster. John Warner, justice of the peace, awarded Park full amount asked for.

Park charged the loss to transfer of the goods from the Pennsylvania railroad to the Erie at some point on route to Allen-co, alleging carelessness in handling. The amount of $18 worth of drugs was included in the damaged goods, Park testified.

FAVOR LIGHTS, BUT WANT STREET REPAIRED FIRST

Petition for the installation of boulevard lights in Brice-ave from Metcalf to Collet-st is being circulated among the property owners along the thoroughfare.

Among those who have signed is Chief of Police O. J. Roush. The petition provides that the cost to the owners is not to exceed $2 a front foot. If sufficient signatures are secured the paper will be presented to council.

Some opposition may develop as there is a group of residents who do not oppose the lights, but desire the street be placed in good condition first. They describe it as being full of ruts and holes.

RUSSIA PROTESTS TO ARMS MEET

Objects to Discussion of Chinese Eastern Railway

U. S. INTERESTED IN LINE

Partially Financed by America and Japan

WASHINGTON.—(By Associated Press.)—Advice from Riga that Soviet Russia has protested the discussion of the Chinese Eastern Railway by the Washington conference has served to draw the attention of conference circles to the rather complicated nature of this subject which occupies a place on the American agenda.

The Chinese Eastern, as it is colloquially referred to in the Far East, is of the greatest strategic and economic importance to Russia, Japan and China. It is the great connecting link across China of the trans-Siberian railroad from Vladivostok to far-away Moscow and Petrograd.

It crosses the Chinese province of Manchuria which penetrates like a peninsula into the heart of Siberia. When the czar at all the Russias decided upon his big project of building the trans-Siberian he obtained the right from China to run the road across northern Manchuria, taking in on the way the big city of Harbin. This right gave the Russian railroad immense value which it would not have possessed had it been built entirely in Russian territory.

U. S. INTERESTED
From Harbin a branch of the Chinese Eastern runs south to the city of Chang Chung, Manchuria, where it connects with the northern terminal of the North Manchuria railway, the great Japanese artery of communication which runs south to the city of Dairen on the sea.

Some two or three years ago with the military occupation of Siberia by various troops, including Americans, there was formed an inter-allied railway board with a subsidiary technical board of management under the chairmanship of John F. Stevens, American railroad manager and expert who is now in Washington.

Legally speaking the railroad is regarded as belonging to Russia, but both the United States and Japan are said to have made financial outlays for the upkeep of the line, the guarding of which is entrusted to Chinese because it traverses Chinese territory.

It is the future status of the Chinese Eastern that the conference may be called upon to discuss. Some action is believed by some conference delegates to be necessary because of the present chaotic condition in Russia. It is apparent, however, that the Soviet government is doing everything possible to prevent any definite action concerning the railroad until it has an opportunity to participate in the deliberations.

LIMA NEWS MAN BECOMES INQUISITIVE WITH SANTA

Old Kris Kringle the one Lima sees walking about the streets, and in downtown stores Thursday, is not such a jolly old fellow when he sheds his whiskers and gets down to ordinary, every-day life after the holidays. In fact, he resembles a modern, stern business man; far, far unlike the time-honored jolly old Santa Claus.

Sh-h-h! But don't tell a soul—The Lima News interviewed Santa late Wednesday. Yessir, interviewed the old gent just after he arrived in Lima on a preliminary jaunt to see what is still needed.

"You've gotta good town an, a nice lot of kids down here," Kris averred, "I'll have to start right back now and load up some more things. I'll see you a week from Saturday," was his parting shot.

But the News man stole a peek under his jolly old whiskers and whatcha's spouse, eh? He's just an ordinary, every day gent; this Santa Claus person, Yessir, he's just that.

Her husband was brought into court. At the last minute, Mrs. McMillan confided to the justice she did not want to prosecute her husband. The two walked away from Guyton's court, arm in arm.

SCHOOL HEAD NEAR WRECK

Steers Auto in Ditch to Avoid Collision With Truck

C. A. Arganbright, county superintendent of schools, narrowly escaped serious injury, Wednesday night, when he steered his automobile into a ditch to prevent striking a truck which was standing on public highway, minus a rear wheel. He escaped, but the top of his car was damaged to the extent of $100.

Arganbright was returning to his home on Bluffton on the Friday night. He noted an automobile heading in the opposite direction and moved his lights. The driver of the other car did likewise.

When he finally discovered the car was stationary, he turned the bright lights and proceeded on his journey. He had no more trouble until he discerned a truck parked directly in the road, with its lights on.

He turned his car into the ditch. Owners of the truck, upon ascertaining the damage done, promised Arganbright to reimburse him.

"LITTLE ORPHANT ANNIE" IS A REAL PERSON, STILL LIVING

Woman Immortalized by Hoosier Poet Never Saw a Riley Book

LITTLE Orphant Annie's coming to our house to stay. An' wash the cups an' saucers and brush the crumbs away, an' shoo the chickens off the porch an' just the hearth an' sweep, an' make the fire and bake the bread an' set her board an' keep, an' all as other children when the supper things is done, we set around the kitchen fire and as the oldest fun A-bum to the witch tales 't Annie can about the Gobbie-uns 'at gets you.

GRAYFIELD, Ind. —(Special) How many times have you been delighted in reading of that quaint creature of James Whitcomb Riley, "Little Orphant Annie?"

Did you know that Little Orphant Annie was a real person?

Well, she was. Or is—for she's still living. With her husband, daughter and granddaughter she occupies a little farmhouse near the Hoosier hamlet, Philadelphia, not far from the poet's home here.

Her name is Mrs. John Wesley Gray.

She hasn't a single Riley book in her home. She never knew until a short time ago that the great poet had endeared her to the heart of every American.

As a child Mrs. Gray was Mary Alice Smith, left an orphan at an early age.

Her uncle unable to care for her, brought her to the Riley home to work "for her board an' keep."

And she was full of "gobbie-uns" and witch tales, just as the poet describes her.

Riley originally entitled his poem "Lit's Orphant Annie" but later changed it to Annie. He died thinking "Annie" had died many years before, tho she was living a few miles from his home.

C. O. Power, lecturer and interpreter of Riley, recently called on Mrs. Gray and reviewed her early life with her. He induced her to appear at some Indiana schools in Riley programs.

KIDS, ELDERS WANT SNOW

Heroic efforts on the part of the weatherman to provide a blanket of snow for Mother Earth that will endure, for a few days at least, has thus far been futile.

Lobby lizards in hotels and chair warmers in pool rooms and cigar stores are trying to figure it out.

In fact, with Christmas near and nothing doing in the way of a real snowfall, the kiddies are worried about inability to use their sleds and their elders are moved to remark when a few flakes of "the beautiful" fall earthward.

The "cheerful guy" is always at hand, however, to remind that when the use of a snow shovel becomes imperative, the same folks will not be interested—not at all.

INCREASE CAPITAL AMERICAN BANK

Total to Be $150,000—Location to Be Changed

Increase in capital stock from $100,000 to $150,000; addition of a trust department to meet the increased demand of the patronage and building of the finest banking room and vault in Lima, are proposed plans announced by the officials of the American Bank, Main and High-sts., Thursday.

The institution will move January 1, to its temporary location in the old Times-Republican room, just east of the postoffice, on W. High-st., where business will be conducted until the completion of a modern banking room in the American Bank building, at the southeast corner of the Main and High-st intersection, it was announced.

Increased business of the past year impelled action by officials of the institution in proposing an increase of $50,000 capital stock the first of the year and the installation of a trust department. The bank has more accounts and has transacted a greater volume of business during the past year than ever before, officials said Thursday.

It is proposed to again increase the capital stock when the bank moves into its permanent location at Main and High-sts.

Officials of the institution declared the temporary banking room on W. High-st will afford more floor space and better banking facilities than the present location. A modern vault is being installed and patrons will be as fully protected as at present, it was announced.

A stockholders meeting is scheduled for early in January.

10 BAD ORDER SHIPMENTS IN 2,291 TOTAL DURING PERFECT PACKAGE MONTH

"Perfect Package Month," November, was well observed by most of the Lima shippers and all railroads, it was shown in a report of total rail shipments made during the 30-day period, compiled by the chamber of commerce.

A total of 2,291 shipments, express and freight, were made. Only 10 of that number were rejected because of not being properly labeled or packed.

The Pennsylvania handled 1,448 shipments, with one bad one reported; the Erie 653, of which three were bad; L. E. & W. 674, no bad orders reported; B. & O. 595, three bad, and the D. T. & I. 221, three bad. Of the 10 bad order shipments, two-thirds were refused because of failure to erase old stencil and shipping marks. A few were improperly crated and some were covered with old shipping addresses.

YOU WOULD LIKE THIS PRINCESS!

Famous Royal Bride-to-Be Never Wanted Crown

SHE'S REAL DOMESTIC WOMAN

Knows How to Cook and Use Needle

(BY MILTON BRONNER)

LONDON—(Special)—"I'd like to know just what kind of a girl she is!"

Millions of men and women have expressed that longing since the engagement of Princess Mary, only daughter of the king and queen of England, was announced. And their curiosity has been quickened by the report that her fiancé, Lord Lascelles, may become governor general of Ireland.

"I want to be a woman—not a princess."

Mary was just a little girl when she said this—but she has lived up to it ever since. She was with her queen mother at a children's bazaar. She overheard a youngster say, "Jamma, I thought princesses wore crowns."

"When do I get a crown?" Mary asked the queen.

"When you marry a king," her mother replied.

"Then I'll never have a crown," said Mary, adding, "I want to be a woman—not a princess."

MARY and her eldest brother, the Prince of Wales, have always been close pals.

When the prince entered Dartmouth, he was immensely proud of his naval cadet's uniform.

One morning he found on his pillow a package which had come by mail.

Opening it he discovered a doll dressed like himself and labeled in his sister's handwriting:

"Isn't he pretty?"

MARY when little went shopping with a governess. She wanted a broom. It must be little and stiff. The salespeople and the governess tried to persuade her to buy something else, but she replied:

"No, I want a broom! Henry (her brother) is lazy. I want him to learn to sweep the paths in the garden."

ONE of the first things the queen taught Mary was to mend and mend. She used to mend the socks of her brothers.

During the war she knitted with all the other girls.

One day something went wrong with a sewing machine at Balmoral Castle. The princess met the girl mechanic sent to repair it and exclaimed:

"Oh, let me try! I am rather good with machinery and it's great fun fixing things."

She took the machine to pieces, put it together again and it ran perfectly!

ANOTHER thing the queen taught her was the art of cookery.

Asked what kind of cooking she liked best, Mary replied with candor:

"I like to make something that I may eat afterward."

One of the things she likes to cook is cake.

MARY is the linguist of the royal family. She knows something of all the Scandinavian languages, speaks Spanish and Italian fairly well, German very well and French excellently.

She also hammers out letters on the typewriter and has written some of her father's more intimate correspondence. It was these accomplishments among others that led the Prince of Wales to sigh:

"What a pity it isn't Mary who'll be king! She is so clever, you see."

WHEN Mary was 12, she was rowing on the Thames with her brothers.

A boat containing three Eton students bumped into the royal skiff.

There was nothing to indicate that either the vessel or its owners were royalty. One of the Etonites angrily asked:

"When are you going to learn to row?"

And just as angrily, little Mary replied:

"When you learn manners."

THIS same kid at that age had very little reverence for the high and mighty lords who came to call on papa, the king.

For instance, there is the grave Privy Council. To Princess Mary it was the "Dilly Wig."

One day she called a Privy Councilor a "Dilly Wig" in her father's presence. Papa, the king, gave her a very severe lecture.

ON the day that her betrothal was announced she visited the tots in the Royal Sussex County Hospital, stopping at each bedside to talk to the sick ones.

"Are you a real princess?" asked one kid.

Mary admitted the charge.

"Well," said the child, "I like you. I think you a very nice princess."

And that seems to be the popular verdict on the girl who'll be 1922's most talked of bride.

JAPAN WILL YIELD TO PROGRAM

Bryan Says Tokio Won't Obstruct Arms Conference

ANXIOUS FOR FAR EAST PEACE

Sees Agreement on Both Shantung and Navy

(BY WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN)

WASHINGTON—The Shantung question seems to be the difficult problem just now, but it cannot long obstruct the road to peace if Japan is willing to surrender possession now or at a fixed time in the near future.

Any fair conditions that she may suggest for the protection of property interests there can easily be met there by China. When China is recognized as an independent nation with full sovereignty over her domain and freed from the restrictions that have embarrassed her she will have no trouble in securing the money necessary for the purchase of any property that aliens now control.

JAPAN FOR PEACE

Japan has shown a willingness to conform to the spirit of the conference that she can be counted upon to make any concessions that can be reasonably asked in the interests of peace in the Far East.

Even the request that Japan makes for the retention of the Mutu, her largest and newest battleship, just launched need not embarrass the conference if the adjustment made necessary does not compel the surrender of the naval holiday.

WOULD WEAKEN

It would be a serious thing if any demand made by Japan should prevent the entire suspension of the construction of battleships. The proposition that the United States be permitted to retain two of its new battleships and that Great Britain be permitted to build two would not only very much lessen the moral force of the Hughes proposition, but sentimentally speaking, it would greatly weaken the impression made by the cessation of work in the navy yards.

It is possible that the addition made to Japan's navy by the retention of the Mutu may be offset by the scrapping of an equal tonnage of smaller ships and it is likewise possible that such divisions might be made between Great Britain and America as to permit the suspension of all work on naval craft for the proposed time. It would be most unfortunate if the conclusion of the conference brought the anti-climax. The delegations cannot afford to dampen the enthusiasm aroused at the beginning of the gathering. (Copyright, 1921)

LETTERS TO LOVERS

BY WINONA WILCOX

The love instinct can be put to many uses, say the new psychologists. Bent up in man or woman, it produces all kinds of real and imaginary miseries. Twisted love, however, may be turned from a romantic to a practical purpose; thus transferred, it will provide the individual with a satisfactory variety of happiness.

The process of diverting or changing sex energy is called "sublimation." Some authorities say that "the energy belonging to any primitive instinct may be employed in new and non-primitive channels." Thus love for a person may be used up in craftsmanship.

A girl whose musical ability is sufficient to insure her an excellent salary writes thus:

"I am a busy woman. As director of music in the schools of a large city and as the leader of an orchestra, I have ample outlet for all of my energy."

"I enjoy all of my work immensely, but whenever I see the man to whom I was formerly engaged, I am overcome with nervousness and mental anguish."

"I succeeded in appearing well-poised, but the effort brings on a horrid headache. Later, alone in my room, I indulge in a nice little hysterical spree."

"I certainly have tried to sublimate my love. I have not succeeded. Would be grateful for more information."

In every community are usually a number of clever women who devote endless energy to their professions. Some of them are ardent feminists who prefer a career to marriage. Some scorn men. Some doubt the permanence of romantic love.

They have talked with some of these women and they have frankly confessed that there is always at the back of their minds and underneath their joy in their business success a sense of loss, a residuum of disappointment, a remnant of hurt because they have missed love, the one treacherous experience.

The musician quoted above very wisely fills her days with absorbing interests, yet when her mind is off guard, the love instinct leaps up and harasses her, body and soul.

Sex-consciousness curses them as it has cursed their forebears, as it has cursed civilization.

Sex-consciousness can be controlled only by one power and that is the human will. Before love can be sublimated in any degree, there must be the will as well as the wish to take it from a person and apply it to an occupation.

SUSIE SMART SAYS

Dear Miss Smart: I am a girl 15 years old and am a junior in high school. All my friends go out with the boys, but for some reason they never invite me. I cannot understand why. It puzzles me and, to be very honest, it hurts me. Lots of girls who are not nearly as good looking as I am, are invited and yet I have to sit at home. I am getting tired of it. What can I do or how can I act so the boys will invite me out?

DISCOURAGED: My dear girl, I cannot tell you why you are not as popular as your friends. I can only suggest that you put yourself thru an exacting questionnaire. Have a regular "conversation" with yourself, calling to mind all your traits and characteristics, trying to determine whether you would admire them in the personality of another.

Are you always pleasant and friendly and are you a cheerful and companionable person, willing to forget her own troubles and show a deep understanding and sympathy in the pleasures and troubles of another?

Do you cultivate high standards? Have you an alert mind? Do you keep yourself well informed on matters of great importance? In order to be interesting and a good conversationalist, it is essential that one keep well informed on all the important and worth while happenings of the day.

Do you give careful attention to your appearance? Do you keep your clothes immaculate and do you wear clothes which are most becoming to your type?

Perhaps you cannot answer all these questions in the affirmative, but at least they will help to make you understand why some girls happen to be more popular than others. One can cultivate popularity if only he or she is so-titled.

Dear Miss Smart: (1) I would like to know if you can tell me anything about Rudolph Valentino? (2) Could you please give me the address of the headquarters of the campfire girls? (3) Do you think there is any harm in corresponding with a boy friend? (4) When do you think a girl should have a date? (5) When do you think a boy should leave after going to see his girl friend? (6) Will you give me a good candy recipe?

NOT: (1) Write to the Movie Editor of The Lima News for this information. (2) National Headquarters, Camp Fire Girls, New York, will reach them. Put your return address on the envelope. (3) Certainly not. (4) Your question is rather vague. I presume you refer to the age at which a young girl should be permitted to accept engagements from the boys. That is a question which your mother should decide. (5) Ages should be taken into consideration to a certain extent in this matter. Judging from your writing and your spelling, I think your friends should leave rather early. (6) Here is a recipe for divinity, which is delicious: Boil together three cups of sugar, one cup of corn sirup and a half-cup of water to the stage where a bit of it, dropped into cold water, becomes brittle and snaps. Pour the sirup gradually over the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and beat rapidly. As it thickens, add one teaspoon of vanilla and one cup of chopped nuts. Pour on to a buttered plate and cut into squares or mold in a box lined with oiled paper.

INGROWN NAIL

Toe Nail Turns Out Itself if You Toughen Skin

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgo" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can't penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

"Outgo" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.—Adv.

When a Federal Bureau reminds you that children should not drink coffee or tea— Why not think of your own health?

The Federal Bureau of Education includes in its rules to promote health among the Nation's school children, the warning that children should not drink coffee or tea.

The reason is well known. Coffee and tea contain drugs which stimulate and often over-excite the nerves, and so upset health.

The harm is by no means confined to children, as any doctor can tell you.

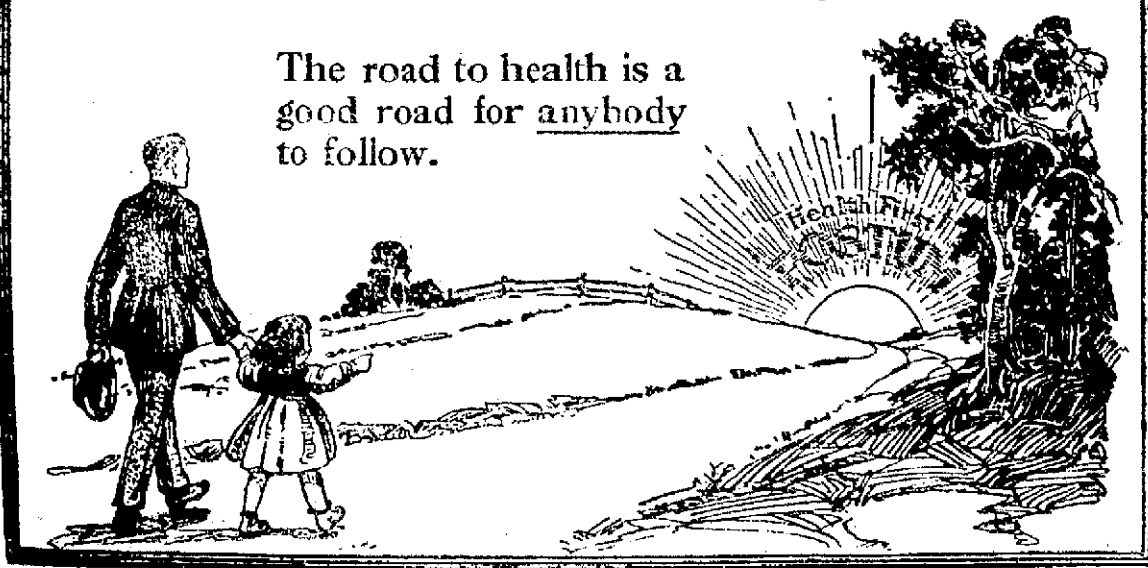

If health is valuable to childhood, it is valuable always. If harm to health should be avoided until bodies grow up, is it worth taking a chance with health when bodies have grown up?

You can have that delicious and satisfying cereal beverage, Postum, with any meal, and be safe—you, and the children, too. There's harm without harm in Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

The road to health is a good road for anybody to follow.

native copper in the Calumet and Hecla. Of course it was just a check, but Hopkins was afraid to hire men to take it out, so for six or eight months we worked it ourselves in shifts of two and sent the gold back east.

"By express as silver concentrates, I suppose."

"No, by motor car. Well, the first thing we knew we'd chiseled out a sum that frightened us. Then came the war and the excess-profits tax and the increase of the income tax rates. Well, the idea was suggested that we'd keep the gold in a pool and we signed a paper among ourselves, making a sort of tontine out of it. If any one died, before we divided, his share went to the rest. No executors were to be let in on it."

"Whose suggestion was that?"

"I don't remember," said Boyd shortly, "but if I did I wouldn't tell you now."

"And then Hopkins fell out of a window," said Pike as if thinking aloud, "and then Andrews, and now you're wondering who's going to be the next?"

Boyd's face had grown ashy white. "What do you think about it?" he asked hoarsely. "Your father, Hopkins, Andrews — Pike?" — he hesitated — "do you suppose there could be something, call it a hoodoo, that follows this gold?"

"I've heard of hoodoos," said Pike, "but there's something hellish about this."

"You haven't had any desire to jump out of a window?"

"Not I," Boyd answered. "I want to live. I've got everything to live for. But so had Andrews, so had Hopkins, so had your father. You might say it was a bad conscience," he went on, "but that wouldn't have incensed Andrews nor Hopkins. It doesn't trouble me. Besides, there's

"Yes."

"Didn't you better tell me who was the other man was?"

"I can't give you his name today. I haven't the right. I've got to see him first. There's something unusual about the situation. It doesn't concern you."

"It has anything to do with the reason for your going thru my papers in Bolivia?" I should say it did concern me," said Pike.

Boyd forced a laugh. "Well," he said, "you're going to be declared on the deal. I'm not going to and for having you robbed no matter who did it. It was this way. I've got to see him first. There's something unusual about the situation. It doesn't concern you."

"It was Hopkins. He was a mining engineer. Well, after we got the property, Hopkins went out again and pushed down into the vein and back ore that was — it wasn't ore at all. It was solid gold! It lay like

"What do you want me to do?" said Pike.

"You could tell him that you love him and marry him tomorrow." With a peal of laughter she turned and fled down the stairs.

Toward midnight Rivers went downstairs and found Pike lying cressed in a chair, with a book.

"He's been arranging that Miss Crewe marry you," he observed. She didn't say "no."

"Look here, Rivers," Pike began angrily, but Rivers stopped him.

"You can't quarrel with me, old man. You see, that note was signed by the man who had the pin-pointed it on you. Some curious thing it is, cuts off signature, address and friendly messages, types new engravings and gives it to you. Result, misunderstanding and ill feeling."

The next moment Rivers's hair was raised by sacrilegious hands. He was seized, lifted and dumped on the couch and Pike dashed out.

Rivers laughed softly. When Pike came in that night, or what happened when he met Mary Crewe the next day, Rivers never knew. Consequently he found them by the rail, discussing the league of nations.

The next day at lunch a waiter handed Pike a note. "Can you come to my cabin at 2 o'clock?" Boyd.

Pike found the sick man sitting on the couch.

"Well, Pike," he said. "The news about Andrews gave me a shock that knocked my digestive apparatus."

"That story," Pike told me, "it happened that I've heard about the transaction. As far as I know, the whole deal was on the square. Your father sold and the other parties bought. Now, you tell me that your father never got the purchase money."

"Is it your understanding, Mr. Boyd, that these other parties bought the whole mine?"

"That is my understanding. Half of it was sold to well call it a check, but Hopkins was afraid to hire men to take it out, so for six or eight months we worked it ourselves in shifts of two and sent the gold back east."

"By express as silver concentrates, I suppose."

"I can't give you his name today. I haven't the right. I've got to see him first. There's something unusual about the situation. It doesn't concern you."

"It has anything to do with the reason for your going thru my papers in Bolivia?" I should say it did concern me," said Pike.

Boyd forced a laugh. "Well," he said, "you're going to be declared on the deal. I'm not going to and for having you robbed no matter who did it. It was this way. I've got to see him first. There's something unusual about the situation. It doesn't concern you."

"It was Hopkins. He was a mining engineer. Well, after we got the property, Hopkins went out again and pushed down into the vein and back ore that was — it wasn't ore at all. It was solid gold! It lay like

"What do you want me to do?" said Pike.

"You could tell him that you love him and marry him tomorrow." With a peal of laughter she turned and fled down the stairs.

Toward midnight Rivers went downstairs and found Pike lying cressed in a chair, with a book.

"He's been arranging that Miss Crewe marry you," he observed. She didn't say "no."

"Look here, Rivers," Pike began angrily, but Rivers stopped him.

"You can't quarrel with me, old man. You see, that note was signed by the man who had the pin-pointed it on you. Some curious thing it is, cuts off signature, address and friendly messages, types new engravings and gives it to you. Result, misunderstanding and ill feeling."

The next moment Rivers's hair was raised by sacrilegious hands. He was seized, lifted and dumped on the couch and Pike dashed out.

Rivers laughed softly. When Pike came in that night, or what happened when he met Mary Crewe the next day, Rivers never knew. Consequently he found them by the rail, discussing the league of nations.

The next day at lunch a waiter handed Pike a note. "Can you come to my cabin at 2 o'clock?" Boyd.

Pike found the sick man sitting on the couch.

"Well, Pike," he said. "The news about Andrews gave me a shock that knocked my digestive apparatus."

"That story," Pike told me, "it happened that I've heard about the transaction. As far as I know, the whole deal was on the square. Your father sold and the other parties bought. Now, you tell me that your father never got the purchase money."

"Is it your understanding, Mr. Boyd, that these other parties bought the whole mine?"

"That is my understanding. Half of it was sold to well call it a check, but Hopkins was afraid to hire men to take it out, so for six or eight months we worked it ourselves in shifts of two and sent the gold back east."

"By express as silver concentrates, I suppose."

"No, by motor car. Well, the first thing we knew we'd chiseled out a sum that frightened us. Then came the war and the excess-profits tax and the increase of the income tax rates. Well, the idea was suggested that we'd keep the gold in a pool and we signed a paper among ourselves, making a sort of tontine out of it. If any one died, before we divided, his share went to the rest. No executors were to be let in on it."

"Whose suggestion was that?"

"I don't remember," said Boyd shortly, "but if I did I wouldn't tell you now."

"And then Hopkins fell out of a window," said Pike as if thinking aloud, "and then Andrews, and now you're wondering who's going to be the next?"

Boyd's face had grown ashy white. "What do you think about it?" he asked hoarsely. "Your father, Hopkins, Andrews — Pike?" — he hesitated — "do you suppose there could be something, call it a hoodoo, that follows this gold?"

"I've heard of hoodoos," said Pike, "but there's something hellish about this."

"You haven't had any desire to jump out of a window?"

"Not I," Boyd answered. "I want to live. I've got everything to live for. But so had Andrews, so had Hopkins, so had your father. You might say it was a bad conscience," he went on, "but that wouldn't have incensed Andrews nor Hopkins. It doesn't trouble me. Besides, there's

"Yes."

"Didn't you better tell me who was the other man was?"

"I can't give you his name today. I haven't the right. I've got to see him first. There's something unusual about the situation. It doesn't concern you."

PAL MOORE GETS CHANCE AT BUFF'S TITLE TONIGHT

MUST SCORE K.O. TO WIN THE CROWN

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Three years ago, Johnny Buff, then an unknown boxer struggling along the pugilistic highways, was offered $75 to box a preliminary contest here on the same night Jack Sharkey defeated Jimmy Wilde in the Englishman's first American appearance. Buff demanded $100. His demands were refused and he did not box.

Tonight in the same ring, Buff, bantamweight champion, will receive a guarantee of $6,000 with a privilege of thirty-five per cent of the gate receipts, to meet Pal Moore of Memphis, in a ten-round no-decision contest.

THE SECOND MEETING
This will be their second meeting. Moore met Buff before he became champion in an eight-round no-decision contest at Jersey City and was credited with outpointing him.

Judging from advance indications, the biggest crowd that ever witnessed a bantamweight contest in the middle west will be on hand. Between 2,000 and 3,000 Chicagoans will go on special trains. The gate receipts, provided a capacity crowd is in attendance, will reach $23,000.

HE RISKS BOXERS
Tonight's contest will be the first important one for Buff since he won the championship from Pete Herman.

Walter Houshan, a referee of 15 years' experience, will be the third man in the ring tonight. He was selected at Buff's request. Under the Wisconsin rules no decision will be given and Moore to win the title, must score a knockout.

Batters, Take A Hunch From Veteran Groh
By BILLY EVANS
They say if you are a star, you are bound to be different.
If you are not temperamental, as a great many stars are, then you must have a style that differs from the ordinary "critter."

Helele Groh has every right to be classed as a star on that basis. However, Groh has great natural ability, plus a quick thinking brain, which really outclasses him to such ranking.

No great, or even good, hitter in the history of the game, takes a position in the batter's box that in any way shapes up with that of Groh.

When a batter steps into the box, it is often said that he faces the pitcher. That goes literally for Groh. He stands directly facing the pitcher with bat on the shoulder or waving in front of him. He whirled suddenly when the pitcher delivers the ball, and steps into it, much the same as the ordinary batter.

Groh's stance is most peculiar. However, it is very effective, as Groh always bats around .300. He claims his style prevents weakness on curve balls, as it gives the batsman no chance to pull away from the plate. Rather it forces him to step directly into the ball.

NOT A YOUNGSTER
Groh is far from being a youngster. He is 34 years of age, it hardly seems possible that he has over five years more of service in him. That makes the price paid all the more astounding.

Groh is small in stature, being about five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds. He is regarded as one of the best place hitters in baseball. This makes him invaluable in the hit and run play, a style used so much by McGraw.

M'GRAW PAYS BIG PRICE FOR THIS RECRUIT

Will Jimmy O'Connell prove a sensation or a bust?

O'Connell is the first baseman of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League.

He is the "busher" for whom John McGraw of the New York Giants paid $75,000. Despite the price he will not be delivered until 1923.

O'Connell is such a big favorite on the coast that the San Francisco club would make no deal unless given the right to his services for another year.

The work of O'Connell will be watched with greater interest this coming season than that of most major league stars. When a club pays $75,000 for an untried player, fandom immediately gives him the constant once over.

O'Connell is not quite 20 years of age. This is his second season in professional ball. He came to San Francisco from Santa Clara college.

O'Connell was an outfielder as a collegian. He was converted into a first baseman. He is a hard hitter, fine fielder and very fast for a big man.

Two years ago, Fred Mitchell, then managing the Cubs, who trained on the coast, saw O'Connell in an exhibition game. It was before the opening of the Coast League season. Mitchell offered $10,000 for him after the game. Mitchell is a good judge of ball players. Looks as if he had the right dope on O'Connell.

Will the huge price of $75,000 affect O'Connell's play? It will cause the New York fans to expect big things. Fancy prices have caused a lot of bush league stars to flounder. What will be the fate of O'Connell?

O'Connell's Life Worth Fortune

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — Life and accident insurance has been taken by the New York Giants on Jimmy O'Connell, star first baseman of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, according to reports received here.

SOLD FOR $75,000
O'Connell recently was sold to the Giants for $75,000, said to be the highest price ever paid for a minor leaguer, and he will report to them in 1923. As he plays with San Francisco next season, the local team is considering insuring him for an additional $100,000 to protect themselves from anything that might happen before he goes east.

If the policies on O'Connell total $175,000, he will be, it is said, the highest insured athlete in the world.

YOUNG EDISON'S RISE WATCHED

of Great Inventor Following in Father's Footsteps

EXCEPTION TO THE RULE

Inspiring of Super-men Usually Fail to Become Giants

(BY B. C. FORBES)

NEW YORK (Special) — A young phase of human nature is the consuming anxiety of most big men to invest their sons with qualifications and a reputation not always warranted by the unvarnished facts.

History reveals comparatively few instances of super-men begetting super-sons. The few shining exceptions serve only to emphasize the general rule.

The praiseworthy desire of really notable men to portray their sons as having acquired or cultivated equal ability is brought to mind by Edison's enthusiasm over a new invention.

Edison's oldest son also is a young man of unusual promise. He is now manager of the great Edison plants, and he exhibits very marked executive ability.

Those who know Henry Ford well declare that the one thing uppermost in his mind is to make his son a success in business.

John D. Rockefeller, I have been told, was at first poignantly disappointed when his only son did not follow him into the oil business.

George M. Reynolds, head of the largest bank in Chicago, has a son who early entered the financial field.

Stock Market Broadest and Most Active of Week

NEW YORK — Shares of the various Pacific Coast companies were conspicuously strong at the opening of today's stock market.

Former leaders of the railway and industrial divisions shared only slightly in the increased activity and strength of the forenoon.

Today's stock market was the broadest and most active of the week. Oils, metals and various specialties led the general advance of 1 to 5 points.

The closing was strong. Government bonds were featured by new high records for Victory notes.

On the other hand, one could name a long list of present-day financial and business giants whose sons are the varied pygmies.

Early Slump Overcome by Rally — Close is Strong

CHICAGO — Fresh declines took place in the wheat market today during the early trading. Prospects of rain or snow in the southwest where there has been complaint of drought gave some advantage to the bears.

Corn and oats were easy with wheat. After opening 1-8c lower to a like advance May 52 3-8 52 1-2, the corn market held within narrow limits.

SHORT SHAVINGS

Fred Calvert says a neighbor is set against all waste. He bought a box of dog biscuits for his dog. The dog wouldn't eat them. "He didn't want the dog biscuits to go to waste," reports Calvert. "So he ate them himself."

Martin Nellis, manager of a photographing establishment, was getting the addresses of his employees. "You don't need my address," said one of them. "I don't want to do any night work. And if I fail to show up any morning, you needn't look for me. I'll be dead."

Desk man Frank Kinzer of the police department reported for duty with a large red looking contusion on his jaw. "No, I am not a victim of domestic discord, as you are perhaps led to believe," he said. "I was repairing my coal bin and a plank slipped and tapped me in the face."

Get Nerve Force from Nuxated Iron

It will strengthen your nerves and increase your vigor and endurance, often in two weeks' time. It contains the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve force in a form which most nearly resembles that in the brain and nerve cells of man. It also contains organic iron like the iron in your blood, and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Organic iron enriches the blood and plenty of rich red blood means more nerve force, so that Nuxated Iron not only feeds what might be termed artificial nerve force in the nerve cells, but it stimulates the blood to manufacture a greatly increased supply of new nerve force. Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today, and in two weeks' time you do not feel that it has increased your nerve force, and made you feel better and stronger in every way, your money will be refunded. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

Question—When I have pains around the heart, killing headaches, sour, gassy, bloated stomach, bilious, constipated bowels, what will give me quick relief?

Answer—Bulgarian Blood Tea. Question—When I catch cold I know there is danger of it drifting down into the chest and lungs, what should I do to help break it up quickly, and guard against Influenza, Grippes or Pneumonia?

Answer—Take steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Blood Tea at bedtime—add a little lemon juice, it works like magic. You will praise and recommend Bulgarian Tea to every one. You will never be without it in your home. It costs but a small amount and your druggist will be glad to supply you.—Adv.

Stewed Raisins

Serve for breakfast every morning and get your daily iron this way

That Dainty Loaf

supplies food-iron—a builder of healthful vitality in women—their greatest charm

Here's a dainty luncheon so delicious that you'll be apt to overlook the healthful benefits it brings—by thinking only of its luscious flavor.

Those benefits are due to the rich food-iron content of the raisins. Food-iron fortifies the blood—brings rosy cheeks, bright eyes. But more than that, a proper daily iron supply, if long continued, builds strong, healthy, vigorous vitality.

That vitality, that magnetic force, is "personality" and is yours, and every woman's greatest charm.

You need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that need is vital. Get it through right foods—this luscious raisin bread is one way.

Have it toasted every morning, with your coffee, and thus get the benefits of regularity. Try today—this captivating, vitalizing food. It will be your favorite breakfast toast.

Delicious raisin bread is sold by bake shops and groceries everywhere. Buy of them to save baking at home.

Real raisin bread is made with lots of raisins. Insist on it. First-class bakers do not stint.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins, made from California's finest table grapes—American raisins, processed and packed immaculately in a great modern California plant. Seeded (seeds removed); Seedless (grown without seeds); Clusters (on the stem). Also a fine, ever-ready dessert.

Raisins are cheaper by 30 per cent than formerly—see that you get plenty in your foods.
